SPIRIT OF THE MORNING PRESS. The Intelligencer says of the Reciprocity

"We are gratified to learn that the Provinces of Canada and New Brunswick having affirmed the Reciprocity freaty by legislative enactment, and made the necessary orders for carrying it into effect, our Executive has very the produce of those Provinces into the United States on the same terms as have been extended to colonial fish; thus greatly facilitating trade, and adding to the good feeling which now exists between the two countries. The colony of Prince Edward Island will no doubt be admitted to this arrangement as soon as the necessary official information is received and passed the requisite enactment. Nova Scotia alone does not avail itself or this arrangement, its Government still neglecting to take any movement respecting the Treaty.

As an evidence of praiseworthy dispatch on both sides in giving effect, as far as possible under existing circumstances, to the Treaty, we may mention that the Legislature of New Brunswick passed the necessary act last Friday evening, and, through telegraph and the rapid movement of official agents, official information of the act was received in Washington yesterday morning by the British Minister, and by three o'clock the business was arranged by our Government with him."

The Union, discussing religion and politics,

"There is nothing, we believe, in the doc trines of Christianity, as revealed to us by the elective franchise. We regard its exercise not merely as a privilege, but as a duty which should alike be fully and freely discharged by the clergy as well as by the laity. But when we see our pulpits converted into political rostrums-when the teachings of the lowly and peace-loving Saviour are set aside for the inflammatory harangues of persecuting persons-and when the ballot-box, through the agency of secret political societies, is made an engine for the worst species of tyranny, op pression, and ostracism, we may well tremble for the safety and perpetuity of our free institutions. All history teaches us that when religion becomes a potent element in the strife of politics, the liberties of the people are placed in imminent peril. It matters not whether the Protestants or the Catholics were the established party in the State, the result has ever been the same. Take away the Church of England from Victoria, and the Roman hierarchy from Louis Napoleon, and it is a question of considerable doubt as to the duration of the power of either sovereign. Of all professions in the community-physicians not excepted-clergymen exercise the most powerful influence, be it for good or for evil. As a general rule, their strictly moral lives, their high intellectual gifts, and their rare powers of persuasion, coupled with their calling, which demands on untiring devotion to the temporal and eternal welfare of their feilow-men, inspire a confidence and beget an affection the extent of which cannot easily be exaggerated. Aware of this feeling, and of the all-pervading influence growing out of it, the founders of our republic ingrafted upon our institutions a spirit of religious toleration which they fondly believed would forever prevent sectarian interference, assumption, and persecution. With one or two trifling exceptions, the party politics of this country have been free from the curse of religious interference, bigotry, and persecution until the year 1854."

The Sentinel reviews the important features of this day-the election day of five States of the American Union.

The Health of Baltimore. We perceive from the Baltimore Patriot that that city's health report for the last week shows but 86 deaths, out of a population of about 225,000, we believe. This proves that Finley Bigger, having left Washington city on the whole, that city is remarkably free from sickness. We have to say to the Patriot, that what we published not long since concerning the presence of yellow fever in Baltimore, was derived from official reports, of the existence of which we managed to obtain information. We know that it was reported officially that 60 deaths had occurred in the vicinity of the receiving ship, 'from yellow fever," and that the surgeon, on that account, advised the closing of the rendezvous, temporarily. Our friend of the Patriot will perceive, therefore, that our warrant for our statement in the matter could not possibly have been better.

PROFITABLE SEASON FOR THIEVES .- Many of the citizens of Savannah, Geo., on returning to their homes from their prolonged absence during the prevalence of the yellow fever have found their houses plundered by thieves. The News of that place, says that during two months past, the burglars have been at work ith the most reckless daring.

WASHINGTON NEWS AND GOSSIP. An Arduous Campaign -From all we have been able to learn concerning it, the recent campaign of Senator Douglas, of Illinois, has been one of the most active and trying ever undertaken by a public man in this country. He has, in a comparatively very short time, addressed nearly all the people of Illinois in the habit of listening to political speeches; for his reputation as an orator and statesman. drew out the voters of all sides in politics to hear him. Night and day, he was either "on the go," or "on the stump." It is due to him to say that he met every responsibility of his position like a true-hearted man as he is, sustaining his celebrated Nebraska bill before his own constituents, precisely as he sustained it in his place in the Senate of the United States. His leading point (if we understand him correctly) has been, throughout this canvass, that the General Government has no right to interfere directly or indirectly to addition to its Washington News, the shape the domestic institutions of any terri-WEEKLY STAR will contain original and tory or State; and that the Missouri compromise was wrong, because it violated that leading principle of popular sovereignty under the limitation of the Constitution of the United States, involved in the doctrine laid down above. He has not pretended to prefer Southern to Northern institutions, and he has contended that, left to decide the question for themselves, when coming to frame a State Constitution, the people everywhere, except in extreme Southern latitudes, where American and European whites cannot labor at agriculture, will prefer not to legalize African slavery; though he has held and enforced that if they decide otherwise, it is the duty of all others to acquiesce in such a decision made at the constitutional time, by those (the particular community) who then alone have a legal interest in their determination. We make this explanation concerning his positions, as we have been able to cull them out from among the misrepresentations on both sides Evening Star with their papers regularly with which the partisan press has teemed, by way of setting him right before our readers. Southern men as we are, we can ask no more from a Northern public man than due respect for Southern rights under the Constitution and laws, which Senator Douglas has nobly and cheerfully accorded. General Cass, too, has fairly earned the gratitude of all the South in this short canvass. notwithstanding the misrepresentations of his positions made by a handful of Southern newspapers of both parties, afflicted, as all the world knows, with a chronic disinclination to him and all he says and does. His speech and conduct at Chicago recently, show him to the world, for the hundredth time, as the defender of all the rights of all sections of the design for stoves-"Egg Stove." confederacy, willing to sacrifice himself at home, if necessary, in the discharge of that great public duty of the statesman who has come to belong to the country at large, rather than to a State or section. While we do not ate the patriotism on which those views are founded, so manifest in his determined opposition to an interference on the part of the General Government in the domestic institutions of the United States Territories. That from that quarter, its Legislature having met he does not advocate "squatter sovereignty" as a means of indirectly doing against the South that which he admits cannot be done by the Federal Government either justly or legally, all know who are familiar with the details of his public history. Nor is he an advocate for any action on the part of the settlers in Territories which shall directly or indirectly prevent the southern portion of the confederacy from enjoying all their constitutional or legal rights there. In the whole course of his long Senatorial career, General Cass has never, by word or deed, given the South the least reason to believe that he has been actuated by a disposition in any way to strengthen his own section at her expense. It inspired writers, at all incompatible with the is but simple justice to judge such public men exercise of the inestimable privilege of the as Cass and Douglas by their whole course in public life, their record being long, plain and full of incidents on which satisfactory opinions may properly be based. They should not be judged by partisan reports of their speeches to miscellaneous crowds. We know from our knowledge of the newspaper business, that a sketch of a stump speech is rarely published. which is not reported with bias one way or the other. We, therefore, place the least possible reliance upon such things.

The Trial in Lowell .- Having heard surprise expressed at the action of the Judge in the Lowell rape case, in permitting the witness -Swan-torefuse to answer questions with reference to occurrences in a Know Nothing lodge, on the ground that his "fear of punishment" justified his refusal, we have to say in explanation, that the laws of Massachusetts make the taking of an illegal oath punishable as a crime; and that the oath which the witness had taken, as explained by himself, bade fair to bring him under the penalty of statute. The witness evidently meant that he dreaded punishment from the lodge; though his explanation of his reason for refusing to reply to certain of the questions put to him by the defendant's counsel was so couched, as to compel the Judge to excuse him from answering, on the ground that, otherwise, he might be compelled to criminate himself under the statute of the State.

Extreme Illness of the Venerable Widow of Alexander Hamilton.—We regret to have to announce the extreme illness of the beloved and venerable lady, Mrs. Hamilton, being now in her ninety-seventh year. It is hardly possible that she can survive this severe attack. It will be remembered that she is the daughter of the distinguished Major General Schuyler of the Revolutionary War.

The Register of the Treasury.—The Hon. to give testimony in a slave trade case, now being tried in the United States Court, at New York, Charles T. Jones, Esq., Chief Clerk of he bureau, has been appointed Register pro. tem. until the return of Mr. B.

The President of the United States, we are happy to be able to say, has entirely recovered from his late indisposition.

District of Columbia. We call the attention of the readers of tu-Star to the following expose, found in the New York Express of last evening:

The recent breaking up of the Merchants' Exchange Bank of Anacosta, D. C., has induced us to make some inquiries relative to the other banks of the district The facts thus far at our disposal we now present to our readers. They refer more particularly to the Manufacturers Bank of Georgetown, D. C., against the circulation of which our readers drill rooms. By order, OLIVER BYRNES, Captain. an insurance agent of this city, and the notes were engraved and printed by Messrs. Well-stood, Hanks & Co. The Insurance agent referred to, did not however, circulate any of this purious issue, but sold his interest in the purious and notes already printed, to one Franklin Mead, then of this city and late of Massachusetts, for the sum of five hundred dollars, and he without making any considerable issue of those shin plasters, re-sold to one Atis Osgood, of Draout, Mass., who being a speculator, circulated the following amount in various States: in New Hampshire $350, in Massachusetts about $1,000, in New York about $500, making an aggregate of nearly $2,000. His known speculative humor now acted upon him and his project, to the complete destruction of his banking operations; his friends, however, redeemed the entire amount of outstanding liabilities of the bank. The plates and bills of the bank then, in February last, passed into the hands of Alfred Hyde, now also connected with the bank, which has induced this inquiry. His first business was a trip to Washington, where, we understand, a sign was painted and affixed to the door of the store of a jeweler of that city, or Georgetown, with the understanding that that firm should redeem any of the notes that should be presented there. The bills were then circulated through the recommendation of the different Bank Reporters, in large sums, which thus far, we believe, have been duly redeemed in this city. How long it will continue so to be, is an unsolved problem.

FORT WELLINGTON DESERTED .- The Telegraph, printed at Prescott, Canada West, informs us that the whole military force has been removed from Fort Wellington, in Prescott, and that old fortification is now left without a man to guard its gate. Twenty picked pensioners, however, are to be immediately placed in its barracks, who will perform a certain amount of military duty, and receive half a dollar each per day in addition to their pensions. They will be furnished with military clothing, and not be permitted to work by the day as formerly.

Editors of the Star: The movements of the City Councils in relation to the license law have created more excitement than any other act that has ever emanated from that body. Feelings of disgust, so deep rooted, have taken hold of the public mind, that the voters will, official notice, by the last steamer, that King at the June election, regardless of party predelictions, hurl from the Councils every person now having a seat in that body who voted in favor of the measures lately brought before

Well may the citizens complain of the acts the Emperor of Russia as bribes to American of their representatives, when they have spent week after week legislating upon matters in been engaged for the season. which they have far transcended the powers vested in them by the city charter. After all the time consumed upon the license question, what has been accomplished? Simply an increase upon the grocer's license of three hundred per cent-a business legally conducted, by men against whom public opinion has never

> Ask members what powers are vested in the corporation relative to the license system, and you will find very many of them unable or unwilling to answer the question. They will probably tell you that Mr. May reported a bill declaring that the city authorities possessed the power to prohibit the sale of liquors in this city; which was not the case. The report of Mr. May was a mere maneuver to evade direct legislation upon that subject. The acts passed by the Councils upon the subject are so mystified that no two members of them will agree to the same interpretation of them. Consequently, the whole of their legislative acts in this connection had to be referred to the Mayor, to have placed upon them such a construction as he conceived to be correct and in accordance with the city charter; which construction the members are unwilling to sanction, each one construing the law to suit

What has been done by the Councils under the They have passed an ordinance prohibiting tippling houses, in refusing them a license. By that act the Corporation has accomplished nothing but a loss of revenue. Persons who have heretofore been conducting such a business, will apply for license for ordinaries, which cannot be refused by the Corporation. If refused, they will conduct their business under that head, without being liable to fine and improvement. Taverns and ordinaries are to be licensed under the old system barring the privilege to sell liquors; so that taverns are to be taxed for the privilege of feeding and lodging strangers. Upon that principle all boarding house keepers must come under debts and incumbrances, charged thereon, and upon which a tax shall have been paid.

As has been stated; the grocers, whose licenses are about expiring, are the only sufferers, by the bungling legislation of the Council. Whether the Councils will oppress one class of our fellow citizens whose business is the least objectionable, so far as liquor is concerned, to the exclusion of others, will be seen by their future legislation.

In order that the citizens may know what the powers confered upon Corporation by the Government in the city charter are, I annex every section from the charter touching that subject, which is very short and explicit, and in full force.

"To provide for licensing, taxing, and reguating auctions, retailers, ordinaries and taverns, hackney carriages, wagons, carts and drays, pawn brokers, venders of lottery tickets, money changers, and hawkers and pedlers."
